UNIVERSITY OF TSUKUBA
GRADUATE SCHOOL
OF HUMANITIES AND
SOCIAL SCIENCES

University of Tsukuba

Academic Environment

Established in October 1973, the University of Tsukuba has inherited the history and tradition down from its predecessor (Tokyo University of Education), which was founded in 1872. As the first comprehensive university in Japan to be established under a nation-wide university reform plan, the University of Tsukuba emphasizes openness in higher education. It offers students a new system of education and research through its New University administration.

In addition to its leading position in university reform, the University of Tsukuba plays a major role as the prime academic facility in Tsukuba Science City, which is the home of many of the nation's top research institutions. We strive to maintain an exceptional level of education and research, to foster our university's unique character, and to create an internationally competitive academic institution.

The University of Tsukuba offers undergraduate degrees and at the graduate level, master's, doctoral, and professional degree programs.

Graduate School of Business Sciences, Humanities and Social Sciences is the only institution in Japan that offers a MA degree with a specific focus on Eurasian region. This program heavily built upon successful experience of conducting training and research within Special Program for Central Asian Countries established in the University of Tsukuba in 2006.

Master of Arts Graduate Program in Sustainable Development Goals

Background of the Program

This English-language program is a unique program offering students MA degree. It is intended for students from the Eurasian region (Central Asia and Azerbaijan). Classes, guidance, and writing theses and dissertations are conducted in English. Areas of expertise consist of various subjects related to the humanities and social sciences disciplines including the fields of Japanese, Eurasian and International Studies. The graduates of the program are expected to contribute to the understanding of SDGs and their implementations as well as to play active roles in the educational and research institutes of their home countries.

Aims of the Program

The main goals of the program are:

1. To foster human resources to promote a better understanding of SDGs as well as the associated problems pertaining to Central Asia and Azerbaijan;
2. To reinforce the networks between Eurasia and Japan through the goals mentioned above.

Program Content

The program is promoted by the Graduate School of Business Sciences, Humanities and Social Sciences of the University of Tsukuba.

First, students enroll in the MA Program, which offers more than 50 courses in English, and develops international, interdisciplinary and problem-oriented approach to the understanding of a specific country or an area.

Structure of the Program

The program consists of a 1.5-year Master's Program. Over the course of their studies, students will have an opportunity to receive their education using English-language-based curriculum in addition to having an opportunity to enroll in complimentary Japanese language education. By the end of their studies, students are expected to become leading specialists in the chosen area of their specialization. The curriculum of the program features, among other subjects, seminars conducted by JICA, UN, ADB and governmental agencies, colloquiums based on collaborative research projects and internships at the Japanese companies. Those graduating from this program will be in a position to seek employment in the academic and research institutions, UN agencies, governmental institutions and corporate community.

Collaboration with Nippon Foundation Central Asia – Japan Human Resource Development Project

Those applicants who demonstrate outstanding abilities will be awarded scholarships for their graduate studies under the "Nippon Foundation Central Asia-Japan Human Resource Development Project". The "Nippon Foundation Central Asia-Japan Human Resource Development Project" has been launched in January 2019, sponsored by The Nippon Foundation, to foster human resources, who will contribute to achieve "Sustainable Development Goals (SDGs)" of Central Asian region. In addition to the regular MA program, the project provides special courses for understanding main ideas of SDGs and its implementation in Japan and Central Asian region.

Note: Please note that those selected for the program and eventually awarded Nippon Foundation fellowship awards will be required to participate in the events organized for the fellows and submit their reports about these events. In addition, the information regarding the details of the fellows such as their names, short biographies as well as their activities with their photos is to be published online and distributed widely as a part of promotional activities of the program. Also, the photos and videos of events organized for the fellows will be made public on the website. Thus, those who apply for the fellowship need to be aware that their application for the fellowship is considered to be their consent to the conditions above.

Language of Instruction

English is the main language of instruction for this program.

Degrees Obtained

Students will receive an MA degree in International Public Policy at the Graduate School of Business Sciences, Humanities and Social Sciences at the University of Tsukuba.
